So You're Positive, Now What?

Our platform is

A N O N Y M O U S
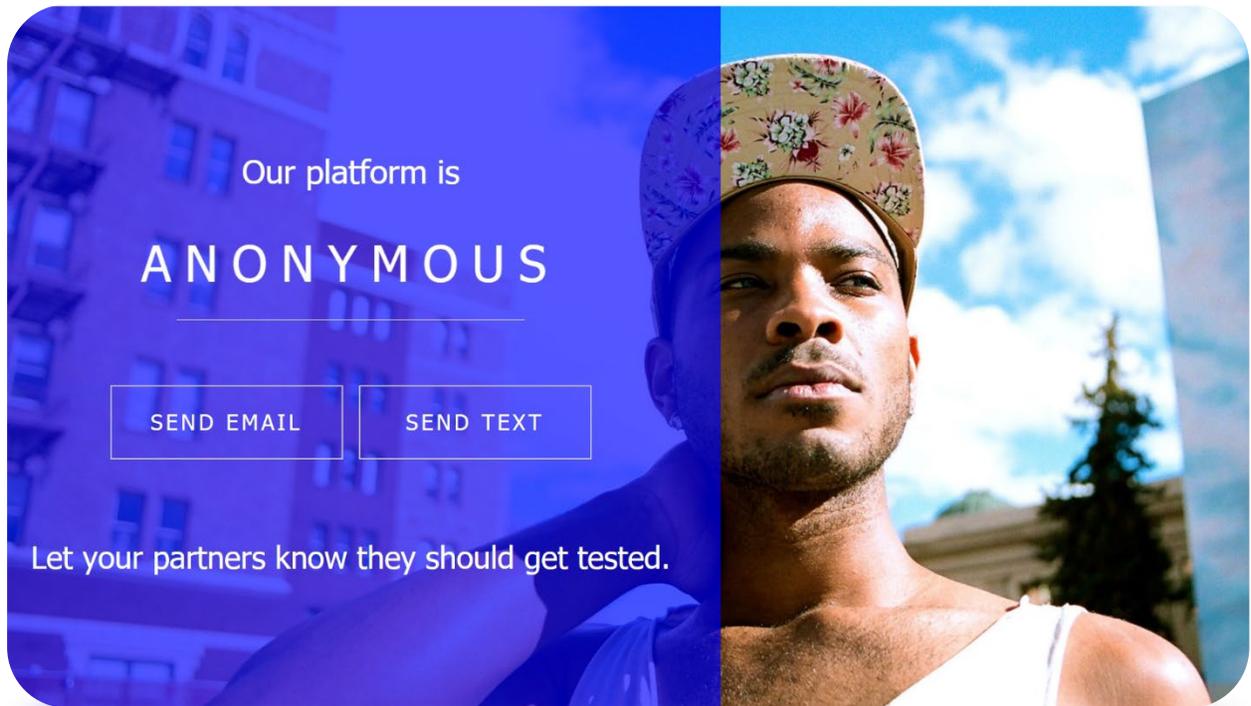

SEND EMAIL   SEND TEXT

Let your partners know they should get tested.

tellyourpartner.org

It can be hard to inform partners that they might have been exposed to an STI. We also know it feels better knowing that we're taking care of our partners' health. We believe that the more ways we have of telling our partners, the better off we'll all be.

You might feel awkward, scared, and worried about your partner's reaction. Your local health department can help and will protect your anonymity too. Having a way to tell them anonymously gives you options.

You can help stop the spread.

The Atlantic County Division of Public Health offers confidential STD testing, treatment, counseling/education, HIV testing and PrEP referrals at no cost to county residents. The walk-in clinic is open every Monday (except holidays) 2:00-4:00PM at 201 S. Shore Road in Northfield. No appointment is necessary. For more information call (609) 645-5933.

Tell Your Partner

SEAL OF COUNTY OF ATLANTIC · NEW JERSEY · 1837

Public Health
Prevent. Promote. Protect.

HOW TO USE:

1. Simply go to: tellyourpartner.org
2. Choose HOW you want to inform your partner(S)

WHAT YOUR PARTNER WILL SEE IF YOU TEXT

Again, this is TOTALLY anonymous! We won't store your partner's phone number. We want you to feel completely comfortable when you use this resource. To the right you will see some animations to show how your text will show up to the person you send it to.

> This is an important message about your health. One of your sexual partners recently tested positive for (disease) and is notifying you through an anonymous notification service. (They left you this message: "if you left a message it would go here)". We recommend getting tested even if you are not experiencing any symptoms. Please do not reply to this text. For more information, including how to find a free clinic, please visit http://tellyourpartner.org

WHAT YOUR PARTNER WILL SEE IF YOU EMAIL

Again, this is TOTALLY anonymous! We won't store your partner's email. We want you to feel completely comfortable when you use this resource. To the right you will see some animations to show how your email will show up to the person you send it to.

Information about your health   Inbox   2:59 PM (20 minutes ago)

TellYourPartner.org <info@tellyourpartner.org> Unsubscribe to me

This is an important message about your health.
One of your sexual partners recently tested positive for (disease) and is notifying you through an anonymous notification service.

(They left you this message:
"if you left a message it would go here)".
We recommend getting tested even if you are not experiencing any symptoms.
Please visit https://tellyourpartner.org for more information including how to find a free clinic.
Please do not reply to this email.

Tellyourpartner.org — A free and anonymous way to support your partners' health.